

TABLE OF CONTENTS

| | |
|---|-----|
| About the series | v |
| Foreword | ix |
| Acknowledgement | xi |
| Introduction – an exploratory journey towards a consequential restorative justice | 1 |
| 1 Restorative Justice in Comparison | 21 |
| 2 What Is at Stake in Restorative Justice for Juveniles | 35 |
| 3 Restoration in Youth Justice | 41 |
| 4 How Pure Can a Maximalist Approach to Restorative Justice Remain? – Or Can a Purist Model of Restorative Justice Become Maximalist? | 91 |
| 5 Imposing Restoration Instead of Inflicting Pain – Reflections on the Judicial Reaction to Crime | 109 |
| 6 Retributivism and the Quality of Social Life – A reply to Antony Duff | 129 |
| 7 Integrating criminal justice and restorative justice | 139 |
| 8 From civilising punishment to civilising criminal justice – From punishment to restoration | 163 |
| 9 Restorative Justice is not a panacea against all social evils | 189 |
| 10 Emotional Dynamics in Restorative Conferences | 205 |
| 11 When restorative justice meets the Good Lives Model: Contributing to a criminology of trust | 225 |
| 12 The need for clarity about restorative justice conferences | 245 |

TABLE OF CONTENTS

| | | |
|-----------|--|------------|
| 13 | Domestic terrorism: a challenge for restorative justice | 259 |
| 14 | Criminology, as I see it ideally | 269 |
| 15 | Positive criminology, criminology of trust and restorative justice | 275 |
| | Conclusion – Consequential restorative justice in conversation with its critics | 287 |